"My wife and I are both family physicians who were seeking to move closer to family in New Jersey. My wife trained in Philadelphia, had close professional contacts in Wilmington, and we felt that this area had an excellent medical community. Delaware has been exactly what we were looking for—a small city with benefits of both city and suburbia, close proximity to larger cultural centers, great opportunities for professional development, and lots to do. We feel it is the perfect place to work and raise our family."
